The N. B. Standard says: "Elder Moses How, FOR NEW BEDFORD. of this city, has probably united more couples marriage than any other clergyman in this vicinity. having officiated Friday evening to the happiness of the 1800th pair. Elder How is seventy-nine years of age, and has been in the ministry fifty-four C. BREWER & CO.'S LINE years. His calls to perform the last sad rites over the remains of the departed have been even more numerous than the number of marriages he has solemnized, the funerals he has attended numbering 2.172. Elder How is the sixth in descent from James How, a Scotch deacon who settled at Ispwich. The office of deacon descended in a direct line through five generations of James How, the last being uncle to our aged townsman: and the name of James How has been continued down
